* The statistics of cheese factories in Orange county given in the preceding table should be deducted before using the table for computing comparative results. This becomes necessary from the fact, that in many factories the cream and often the milk is sold to the New York market, when prices are high, and in most of them butter is also made. Three factories reported 81,335 lbs. of butter; two, 314,569 quarts of milk, and two 62,370 quarts of cream sold. One factory used 105,360 gallons of milk, in making 207,914 lbs. of concentrated milk. Three factories reported $92,433 worth of butter, milk, cream and French cheese sold, without specifying the amount.

a Of 10,500 lbs. of cheese, the quantity of milk was not given.
b Of one factory reporting 717,393 lbs. of milk used, the quantity of cheese was not given.
c Of 7,000 lbs. of milk the quantity of cheese not given.
d Of 14,000 lbs. of cheese made, the quantity of milk not given.
e Of 173,014 lbs. of cheese made the quantity of milk not given.
f Of 990,589 lbs. of milk the quantity of cheese not given.
g Of 728,958 lbs. of cheese the quantity of milk not given.
h Of 431,187 lbs. of milk the quantity of cheese not given.
i Of 89,633 lbs. of cheese the quantity of milk not given.

NUMBER AND SIZE OF BUILDINGS USED AS COUNTY POOR HOUSES, WITH MISCELLANEOUS REMARKS.

ALBANY.—The Alms House is located in the city of Albany, about a mile and a half southwest from the Capitol, and consists of six buildings of brick. The dimensions of five of them are returned as follows: 160 by 10; 120 by 40; 120 by 20; 120 by 20, and an Insane Asylum 120 by 30 feet. No account was kept of the receipts from crops and labor, which went to assist in the support of the establishment. The value of the Poor House buildings was estimated at $14,000.

ALLEGANY.—The County Poor House consists of one main building of stone 36 by 150 feet, with two wings 27 by 36 feet. The first story of one wing is of stone, and the remainder of wood. There is no school kept on the premises, the children being accommodated at a public school half a mile distant, from six to seven months in the year. The receipts reported in the table include what has been sold from the farm, and the expense of maintenance is what is over and above the produce of the farm. The buildings valued at $4,000.

INDIANS.

In the Census Report of 1855, we presented a concise historical summary of the several Indian tribes residing upon reservations in the State, with a particular account of the manner in which they had ceded their title to the lands they had formerly claimed.

It is, therefore, not deemed necessary to repeat this information in the present report, further than is embraced in the following summaries, which include the principle portion capable of presentation in a numerical form.

The Census, shows a slow but steady increase of population, among the Indian tribes of the State, thus opposing facts to the favorite theory, of the gradual and final extinction of the Indian race. The discontinuance of wars, prosecuted for revenge, or for the purpose of replacing deceased members of families, and the protection secured under the laws of civilized life, appear to promise the indefinite continuance of these people among us, and suggest the importance of introducing intelligence and industry, as the surest means of raising them to the degree of improvement, that may entitle them to the duties and privileges of citizens.

Whatever may have formerly been the reasons that rendered it proper to secure their lands, as the common and inalienable property of the tribes, or however necessary it may still be to continue this community of interest for a time among them, an enlightened policy, would encourage advancement in civilization, that might prepare them to receive their lands as individual property, and a compensation equivalent to the principal of their annuities. The motives which prompt the independent man to acquire property and a homestead for his family, would then operate with effect, and each individual, as in the community at large, would find that level in society to which his own abilities entitled him. Their present condition tends to keep them stationary. If they leave their reservations, they receive no benefit from their common lands, and if they wander far, their paltry share in the annuities, (always less than the earnings of a week, yet still highly prized), is lost. The use of their native language, tends still more to isolate them from society, and prevents that contrast with the world, from which alone they can ever become familiar with the useful arts, and the usages of civilized life.

Of the eight remnants of Indian tribes residing in New York, five live upon reservations that were guaranteed to them as proprietors in common, in the cessions of aboriginal title, two occupy in common, lands which they have acquired by purchase or otherwise, and one hold their lands as the individual property of families. The distribution of these Indians, and their location by towns and counties, is as follows:

ALLEGANY RESERVATIONS.—Chiefly of Senecas, lying in the towns of South Valley, Cold Spring, Bucktooth, Great Valley and Carrolton, in Cattaraugus county. This reservation extends about 35 miles along both sides of the Allegany river, is about a mile wide on an average, and contains about 42 square miles or 26,680 acres. The bottom lands are good, but liable to overflow. The hills back from the river are less fertile, and are still chiefly covered with native growths of timber. The New York and Erie Railroad, runs through the eastern portion of these lands to the Little Valley, from which point, the Atlantic and Great Western railroad, continues westward down the valley. Several tracts of land have been leased by the chiefs, for depots, village lots and other purposes. The business of rafting lumber upon the river, in which many engage, is thought to retard improvement, by exposing them to the corrupting examples of whites of low character. The Religious Society of Friends has taken much interest in these and other Indians of the State, and they have a boarding school on a farm adjoining this reservation, at which the native children are received.

The census was reported in 1865 by Harrison Halftown, a native Seneca, and secretary of the tribe.

CATTARAUGUS RESERVATION.—This tract lies along Cattaraugus creek, in the town of Perrysburgh, Cattaraugus county, Collins, Erie county, and Hanover, Chautauqua county, and includes 21,680 acres of fertile land, well adapted to tillage, and a considerable part under improvements. Many of the dwellings are commodious, and the premises around indicate thrift, industry and comfort. A council house has lately been built by the Indian mechanics, at a cost to their nation of $2,500. On the reservation there are, a Baptist, a Congregational and a Methodist Episcopal church, with a total value of $6,610, capable of seating 1,100 persons. Number usually attending, 440; number of communicants, 290; salaries of clergy, $800.

The Thomas Orphan Asylum, an institution called into existence by the wants of destitute Indian children, is described on a foregoing page. It is conducted efficiently and with economy.

An Agricultural Society is sustained upon this reservation, and is composed of members from various tribes. The present Census was taken by Andrew John, a young Seneca of fair education and good judgment.

The CAYUGAS have no reservation left, and those that have not removed west of the Mississippi river chiefly reside at Cattaraugus. In 1865, the number drawing annuities were 33 men, 31 women, and 70 children, and the amount received, was $1,093.50. The Cayugas living west, receive from the State annuities from the sale of their reservation, amounting to about $1,125.00.

THE ONEIDAS reside on farms owned by families, in Lenox, Madison county, and Vernon, Oneida county. A majority of these Indians belong to the Methodist denomination. The census was reported by the enumerators of the towns above named, whose districts included these farms.* The Oneidas, who emigrated about thirty years since, chiefly reside in Brown county, Wisconsin, where nearly eight hundred of them now live.

ONONDAGA RESERVATION.—This lies in the towns of Fayette and Onondaga, Onondaga county. Census taken by William Sabine, a citizen residing in the vicinity, and State agent for the payment of annuities. There are two small churches, supported by the Methodist Episcopal and Wesleyan Methodist denominations respectively, and a school supported by the State. The people are divided into Christian and Pagan parties, the former preferring a division of the common lands, while the latter would have affairs continue in the way of their forefathers, under the direction of their chiefs. About two-thirds of their lands are leased to the whites. But little is raised by the Indians beyond that needed for their own use; but one mechanic—a shoemaker—is found among them, and the only industrial products sold consist of baskets and beadwork, and these in very limited quantities. But few adults are able to read and write, but many of the children attend the State school, and are making fair progress in learning.

Annual Census of Onondaga, reported to the Comptroller as a basis for the distribution of annuities under an act passed in 1847.

The annuities of the Onondagas on the Onondaga Reservation amount to about $1,550, and those to other Onondagas, residing on other reservations, varies from year to year. In 1865, it amounted to $887.04. The census is reported under the classes of men, women and children. The aggregate of each class in 1865, was, on the Onondaga Reservation, 150 men and 152 women; on the other reservations, 39 men, 41 women and 92 children.

ST. REGIS RESERVATION, in the town of Bombay, Franklin county. Census taken by R. C. Smith, a citizen. These people are chiefly descendants of the Mohawks who emigrated to Canada at an early Colonial period, under the influence of the French. They resided at Caughnawaga, near Montreal, before their removal to their present location. An annual census of these people is taken for the purpose of distributing the State annuities. In 1864, the number reported to the Comptroller was 648, and the amount paid was $2,397.60. A large number of American Indians reside on the Canadian side of the Boundary line which passes through the village of St. Regis, while numbers of British Indians, receiving formerly the presents of that government, live in this State. The history of these parties, and the domestic laws and regulations observed in the tribe, were fully given in the Census of 1855, and have not since been changed. The present number of the British party is 760, making the total population of the tribe a little over fourteen hundred. The parties here mentioned are founded upon the distinctions that arose in the war of 1812-15, and the line of hereditary descent, according to the Indian custom, follows from mother to child. The pagan distinction of bands—as those of the Wolf, Plover, Little Turtle, Big Turtle and Bear—are still retained and descend also on the mother's side. Sixty-one were reported as farmers, 5 as soldiers, 1 as a shoemaker, and 1 as a dressmaker. Many of the young men are employed in the summer months in conducting rafts of timber down the rapids of the St. Lawrence, and some are engaged as pilots. Of the married, 131 were first, 21 second, and 2 third, marriages. The prolific tendencies of the St. Regis tribe were noticed in the last Census, and the inquiries made on this, show that 15 women had borne one child, 2 two, 11 three, 5 four, 6 five, 3 six, 12 seven, 3 eight, 6 nine, 4 ten, 2 eleven, 3 twelve, 2 thirteen, 1 fourteen and 1 fifteen. The filthy habits of life that prevail among them invites every pestilence that passes, and which have repeatedly swept off great numbers.

* The enumerator who reported a large part of the Oneida Indians remarked: "It was with much difficulty that I got their report; and as it is, it is more or less imperfect as to their ages, as they cannot tell their own ages in many cases, and they were very reluctant to give in their report till they came together and talked over the matter, and the more intelligent explained it to them, when I finally succeeded."

† Supported by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

‡ Of these, 160 reported as old settlers, and 109 as returned emigrants.

SHINNECOCK RESERVATION.—This is a tract of about 630 acres of land, in Southampton, Suffolk county, which has been occupied by this tribe from time immemorial. At an early period, they conveyed their lands to the white settlers; but, complaints being made of the unfairness of the transaction, a lease was executed to the Indians on the 16th of August, 1703, for the term of a thousand years, at an annual rent of an ear of corn, and upon condition that “the said Indians do not keep, or cause to be kept, any part or parcel of the said land within fence or enclosed, from the last of October to the first of April, from year to year, during the whole term aforesaid.” The Indians also owned an interest in the Shinnecock Hills, a tract of about 3,200 acres, which was long devoted exclusively to pasturage by certain proprietors in town. By a special act of the Legislature, passed in 1859, the Indians were empowered to release their interest in the Hill tract, in consideration of having in themselves the fee of Shinnecock Neck. The tract thus released was sold by the proprietors at public auction, on the 19th of February, 1861, for $6,250, to a company of people residing in Southampton, chiefly for use as pasturage.*

The domestic affairs of these Indians are managed by trustees, elected annually. All traces of the native language is lost. There is an intermixture of negroes in many families, and their condition is quite as favorable as could be expected from an equal number of whites, holding land only in common, and without the stimulus to enterprise which is presented in an individual freehold title. They have a small Congregational church and a spacious school house, the latter erected and maintained by the State.

Many of the young men go on whaling voyages, and become expert mariners, and the young women are often employed as domestics in families. These people are exempt from taxes, and debarred from the elective franchise.

TONAWANDA RESERVATION.—This reservation originally embraced 71 square miles, or 45,440 acres, as surveyed in 1799. It lies in the present towns of Pembroke and Alabama, Genesee county, Newstead, Erie county, and Royalton, Niagara county. The census the present year was reported by Edward M. Poadry, an intelligent Seneca belonging to the reservation, who was chosen to obviate the objections which these people have heretofore raised against inquiries being made upon their reservation, from a jealousy concerning the pre-emption claims of a land company. Yet, this precaution did not fully remove the difficulty, and the enumerator reported: “I commenced and worked three days without being molested. I then met with some that would not let me take the census, in some thirty families. Their excuse was, that I was taking the census, and the value of all the lands and other property, and appraising what they had, so that we could sell the land, and they would have to remove from their homes. They wanted me to wait for a council of the Six Nations, that was to be held on the Cattaraugus Reservation, so that I was obliged to wait for that.” To relieve this difficulty, the enumerator was furnished with an official declaration of the objects of the census, to be read as occasion required.

The lands are held in common, although the cultivated portions are regarded among themselves as private property. The timber lands are under the care of the chiefs, and any member of the tribe may cut wood on any part, for his own use, but not for sale.

The occupations were reported as 74 farmers, 24 laborers, 3 gardeners, 3 ax-helve makers and 2 carpenters. It was remarked that many of the women were better farmers than the men at planting corn or hoeing, and many of them work for the whites of the neighborhood, at the same prices as the men.

Fruit is scarce among these people, except in the old settlements, where they have plums, peaches and cherries. An improvement was noticed in this regard, and some had set out young orchards of from fifty to a hundred trees.

The marriage relation is very lax, and very few were legally married. Most of the men would take to themselves a woman, and after living as long as they could agree—"a month, six weeks or a year, as the case may be." A few were, however, legally married, settled down and doing well. The custom of naming children is mentioned as opposing a difficulty in reporting the Census. A woman after bearing children to a husband, will name them after the grandfather and others, but not so much as formerly. A great number did not know their ages, as they had no records.

There was reported on this reservation, one Baptist church worth $500, capable of seating 200; usual attendance 100; number of communicants 40, and salary of clergy $200.

TUSCARORA RESERVATION in Lewiston, Niagara county. Census reported by William Mount Pleasant, a native, and long familiar with the affairs of the tribe. The lands of these people were in part purchased by the Tuscaroras, with moneys received from the sale of lands, anciently held by them in the State of North Carolina, from whence they emigrated about 1712. The remainder was a gift from the Senecas, and from the Holland Land Company. The entire tract contains 6,249 acres of land, which is mostly of excellent quality.

A Methodist and a Baptist church are maintained on the tract. They have a library, and an association for mutual improvement.

* Of these Indians there were reported, in 1865, 29 in Chautauqua, 233 in Cattaraugus and 1,085 in Erie county.

† The larger portion of the village of St. Regis lies in Canada. The census of that province, in 1861, reported St. Regis and Dundee together, rendering it impossible to determine the Indian population of this place. It is probably about 1,100 in all, including both sides of the line, and all persons who share in the annuities and presents of the two governments.

APPENDIX.

STATISTICS CONCERNING THE SERVICE OF TROOPS FROM NEW YORK IN THE MILITARY OR NAVAL SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES DURING THE LATE REBELLION.

The present Census coming at the close of a war that had raged with fearful energy for four years, and in which the State of New York had largely participated, it was thought proper to introduce a series of inquiries having reference to the late contest, and to the effect it had produced upon the social and material welfare of our population. In reference to this subject, the instructions contained the following suggestions:—

“The apprehensions of a military draft, or of some scheme of taxation will, it is feared, lead to some misapprehension in the minds of persons not correctly informed upon the objects of the census, that it may have some connection with these dreaded measures. You will take care to remove as far as possible such erroneous impressions, by assuring those who may hesitate on these grounds, that the present census is ordered to be taken under a clause of our Constitution, and in pursuance of a law and usage that has existed since the revolutionary war. The facts will warrant you fully in affirming that it has nothing to do with any military enrollment or plan of assessment whatever, but that its purpose is to obtain the basis of a new apportionment of members in the Senate and Assembly of our State legislature, and for collecting such information as may lead to a fair and equal administration of the laws throughout the State.

The inquiries concerning those who are or have been in the military service will, if fully obtained, assist materially in settling many facts now uncertain, in relation to the extent of aid afforded by localities in the present war, and tend to secure impartial justice to every town and county.”

Notwithstanding this assurance, the greatest difficulty was experienced from this source in the large cities, and in many of the towns.

The inquiries concerning those who were, or who had been employed in the service, were, in addition to the statistics required of each person relative to age, civil condition, place of birth, occupation &c., as follows:

1. Regiment, battery, battalion or other organization to which the person belonged, whether by voluntary enlistment, conscription or as a substitute.
2. Date of entering the service, giving the exact year, month and day, or as nearly as could be ascertained.
3. First term of enlistment in years, or if in months, the fractional part of a year.
4. First rank.
5. Subsequent promotions, transfers and re-enlistments. If re-enlisted, when, where, and for what term.
6. Unexpired term on the 1st of June, 1865.
7. Name of present regiment, and where convenient, the letter of the company to which the person belongs.
8. Present rank. If by brevet the fact to be mentioned.
9. Whether volunteer, drafted, substitute for one liable to draft, or representative recruit in place of a person not liable to draft.
10. If out of service, whether by expiration of term or otherwise.
11. Present condition of health of those who have left the service, with a specification of mutilation by loss of limbs or other wounds. This inquiry did not apply to those reported still in the service.

It was desirable to embrace in these inquiries every individual belonging to the State, who had been employed in the army or navy of the United States, since April, 1861, whether he had served in a regiment of this State or another. They would not embrace those who had enlisted in New York regiments, from other states or foreign countries, as these were not entitled to a place in the census. They could not obviously include the men who had no families to answer for them in their absence. As these statistics were obtained from families alone, without the aid of official papers, and usually in the absence of the persons to whom the questions applied, the data were manifestly liable to error through want of information or otherwise.

The result gave a total of 123,126 different persons, a number evidently much below the true amount. As many of these served under different enlistments, they would appear several times upon the official returns, and from this cause alone, the totals should be much below official statements. The facts are presented with all the detail of classification that the subject allowed, and it is believed with as much precision as could be obtained under the Census law.

DETAIL OF ENLISTMENTS AND SERVICE BY CITIES AND TOWNS.

The following abbreviations are used in the following table: I. New York Volunteer Infantry Regiments. A. New York Artillery Regiments. B. New York Batteries. C. New York Cavalry Regiments. Eng. Regiments of other States and of the United States are designated by the customary abbreviations. The number of the regiment, &c., is placed before the letter. If unknown, an interrogation mark is used.

REGIMENTS INTO WHICH ENLISTMENTS OCCURRED.

[This Table (which is a summary of the preceding pages) does not show the total number of enlistments by counties or regiments, but only those living at the time the Census was taken, as reported by the families to which they belonged. Those who had died in the service, or from wounds or disease acquired in the service, will be given in a subsequent table. Non-resident recruits in New York regiments, and those without families to give statistics in their absence, are necessarily omitted. The deficiencies were further increased by the neglect, inability or unwillingness of families to give information.]

DEATHS.

The blanks of the present Census contained a schedule for recording the deaths of officers and enlisted men which had occurred while in the military or naval service of the United States, or from wounds or disease acquired in said service, since April 1, 1861.

The facts were to be reported by the families to which the deceased belonged when at home, and of course was limited to the extent of their information, unaided in the majority of cases, by any official data.

This table could not properly include those who had enlisted from other States or foreign countries while thousands of those who, if living, would have claimed residence, belonged to no families who could give these statistics of their death.

The instructions for obtaining these data were as follows:

“This table, as the title implies, should include all who have died since the beginning of the present war, either in the field or hospitals, or at home, from wounds or disease acquired in the service. As many have been enlisted and credited in this State who had no homes, and left no friends in families to report the facts concerning their death, it is not expected that the Census will secure a record of the full losses of New York troops. But with the most diligent and careful inquiry the greater part can be obtained, and the greatest care is enjoined upon Enumerators to make this return as full as possible.”

The schedules upon this subject embraced inquiries of the name of the deceased; his age at the time of death; civil condition; whether citizen or alien; date of entering the service, specifying the year, month and day; first regiment; original rank; regiment and rank at the time of death; mode of entering the service, whether as volunteer, substitute or drafted,—if colored, the fact stated; promotions while in the service; the year, month and day of death; place of death; the fact of death after leaving the service, or in a rebel prison, if applicable; the manner of death; the surviving friends, specifying widow, parents, minor children and sisters, and of each whether dependant or not dependant upon the deceased for support; the fact whether the body was sent home for burial; the place of burial, and any remarks which the case might suggest.*

Returns more or less complete were received concerning 23,294 deaths occurring in New York regiments, etc., during the war. The details of these, with all the classifications applicable thereto, are given in the following pages. This melancholy record is saddened by the consciousness that it comes far short of presenting the full number of those who, as soldiers from New York, perished in the late war.

* An official report of the Provost-Marshal General's Department, since the return of peace, gives the following numbers for New York: Killed or died of wounds, 14,445; died of disease, 17,407; total, 31,852. The total number for the loyal States was: Killed or died of wounds, 96,089; died of disease, 184,331; total, 280,420. The number of men furnished under all calls, reduced to the three years' standard, was 381,696 for New York, and 2,154,311 for the United States.

BURIAL OF SOLDIERS WHO HAVE DIED IN THE SERVICE.

Since the return of peace, the Government has taken measures for preserving records of the burial of Union soldiers. Several of these lists have been published by the Quartermaster General's Department, and others are in course of preparation. They are arranged alphabetically, and give the company, regiment and State, and the date of death. The general summary of these, so far as they have come to our notice, is as follows :

Prison Pen of Andersonville, Ga.—The record published officially by the Quartermaster's Department, contains 12,461 names, of which the rank, regiment, company and date of death are given, leaving 451 with the sad inscription—"Unknown U. S. Soldiers." Of the above number, 2,518 belonged to New York.

National Cemetery at Alexandria.—Number of interments 3,601, of which 3,367 were white soldiers, two of the United States navy, one white citizen, two white females, and 229 colored soldiers. Number belonging to New York regiments or batteries, 888.

National Cemeteries at Fortress Monroe and Hampton, Va.—This list contains 2,328 names of white soldiers buried at Hampton, and 308 at Fortress Monroe. In addition to these there are ten names of whites, who died previous to the rebellion, and nine colored soldiers of 1864. Number of New York soldiers, 569.

National Cemeteries at Washington, D. C.—This document, of 194 pages, contains the record of 10,877 white soldiers buried in the Military Asylum, Harmony, Battle and New National cemeteries. The number has been increased since the date of publication (June 30th, 1865,) by many who have since died in hospitals. The number of New York soldiers in the list is 3,018.

National Cemeteries in Maine, Minnesota, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Arkansas, Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana and Colorado Territory.—This contains the record of 7,354 soldiers, of whom 1,129 were from New York.

Battle-fields of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Court House, Va.—This list contains 759 names, of which 86 were of New York soldiers. These remains not having been interred until the summer of 1865, the exposure to the weather for more than a year rendered every trace of identification impossible in many cases.

Eastern District of Texas ; Central District of Texas ; Rio Grand District, Department of Texas ; Camp Ford, Tyler, Texas, and Corpus Christi, Texas.—This list contains 1,352 names, of which 566 are of whites, and 786 colored. Two hundred and thirty-two of the former died as prisoners of war at Camp Ford. Number of New York soldiers, 48.

National Cemetery at Gettysburgh.—The numbers of interments of Union soldiers in this cemetery, is reported as 3,509, of which 860 were New York troops. The names and regiments to which each belonged, so far as could be ascertained, were published in the report of the Board of Managers of the New York State Soldiers' Depot, in 1864.

Cold Harbor, Va.—A list containing 654 names, published in the New York Tribune, July 24, 1866, and said to have been prepared by government authority, has 173 names of New York soldiers.

National Cemetery, Seven Pines, Va.—A list of 154 names from the same source has 20 New York names.

[The classification into periods of five years, adopted in the present Census, was extended in the period between 15 and 20 for males, by noting separately those from 15 to 18, and from 18 to 20. The latter, added to the next five columns for males, (as given on pages 18 to 68 of this volume,) produced the following column, which represents the numbers within the ages that had been liable to a draft in the several cities and towns.]

EFFECT OF THE WAR UPON PRICES, BUSINESS AND THE SOCIAL CONDITION OF THE POPULATION.

The Census of 1865, coming at the close of an active war of four years' duration, in which the State of New York had been largely interested, it was thought proper to insert among its miscellaneous inquiries, questions having reference to the influence of this war upon prices, the relative amount of indebtedness, the manner of conducting business, and the relative amount of pauperism and crime. From their nature, these questions admitted of but very general answers, and to the expression of opinions by men who had enjoyed opportunities for observing every portion of the State. The only numerical statement of which these returns admitted, was limited to a classification of these estimates by counties.

The blank for receiving this information was as follows:
"What is the average monthly pay (including board) of farm laborers through the summer months? What by the year? What were these wages in 1860? Has the price of farming lands increased since 1860? State the relative increase. How has the war affected the amount of debt between individuals? What effect has it had upon credit? Has it tended to promote prompt payments? How has it influenced the amount of crime? How has it influenced pauperism? What other changes in the social condition of the people have you observed since 1860?"

INFLUENCE OF THE WAR UPON THE PRICES OF FARM LABOR AND LANDS, UPON THE RELATIVE AMOUNT OF INDEBTEDNESS, UPON CREDIT, AND UPON CRIME AND PAUPERISM.

The question, "What other changes in the social condition of the people have you observed since 1860,?" proved to be too indefinite for tabular deduction, although answered in a great majority of cases. The general tendency of these remarks, although expressed in an infinite variety of forms, might be summed up as follows: An increase of intelligence and habit of thought on subjects of national policy and questions of government. An enlarged acquaintance with our national geography and resources, and liberal views with reference to the necessary expenditures which the war has incurred, with a willingness to bear the burdens thus occasioned. An increased love of country, a new confidence in our form of government, and a growing appreciation of the necessity of education to meet the requirements of the citizen. A marked improvement in the condition of the poor, and the clearing off of debts, from the abundance of money, and the high prices paid for bounties during the later period of the war. An increase in the expenditures, in many cases relatively greater than the difference of prices before the war, with a tendency to luxuries, especially among those with newly acquired wealth. In some localities on the principal lines of travel, and in the suburbs of large cities, an increase of dissipation, idleness and crime was observed, from the presence of soldiers who had returned from the war, with morals depraved. It is but just to record, that the number of this class is relatively very small, and that much the greater portion quietly returned to the avocations of civil life with an industry in no degree impaired by their recent life in the field.

At least nine-tenths of those who reported answers to the inquiry, under our notice, speak cheerfully of the change which the war has wrought, upon the social condition of the people, and the future prospects of the country. The introduction of labor-saving machines, the establishment of factories throughout the dairying sections, for the making of cheese with great economy of labor, and an increased knowledge of our domestic resources, may be counted among the permanent benefits that have resulted from the necessities which the war imposed. The providential succession of two seasons of extraordinary abundance has tended materially to restore prosperity and happiness to the country.
